Mid-term assessment Committee comments:

The committee, consisting of Prof. Robert Olek (external reviewer), Prof. Mariusz Siemiński (internal reviewer), and Prof. Mirosława Cichorek (chairman), reviewed the submitted documentation, including the report on the implementation of the individual research plan, and the statements provided by the PhD supervisor, Prof. Michał Brzeziński and the assistant supervisor Prof. Marlena Robakowska. During the meeting, the committee attended a multimedia presentation by the PhD student and engaged in a discussion with her. The PhD student responded comprehensively to all questions, demonstrating an understanding of the project and displaying expertise in the subject matter of her dissertation.

The PhD student's involvement in the research work is satisfactory. Student is preparing two manuscripts but their submission is planned at the end of this year. The committee concluded that as such, student carries out tasks in accordance with the research plan. Therefore, the committee adopted a positive mid-term evaluation of the PhD student's progress in preparing her dissertation

Detailed justification by the mid-term assessment Committee regarding the result of the mid-term evaluation:

Student Monika Serkowska has successfully completed the tasks outlined in the individual research plan for 2022-2024. She is preparing two manuscripts (the first compares the Polish system of the mental health with other selected systems; the second is epidemiological study analyzing the barriers to access to the care system and the consequences of this availability, e.g. in the number of suicide attempts, child victims of abusing parents) which she plans to submit at the end of this year. Student participated in three conferences where she presented the results of her research; her oral presentation in Bangkok (16.08.2024) conference received an award.

Overall, the student is well-prepared to undertake the upcoming research tasks. Based on the documentation, progress presented to the committee we anticipate efficient further work towards the finalization of the doctoral dissertation
